Foreword

We are standing on the threshold of a new day. There are many problems facing us and many changes to be made just as there were in the years gone before.

Because we wish to remember the problems as well as the fun and fellowship we had in those by-gone years, we present the 1949 Ranger.

A decorative border surrounds the page, featuring a book and floral motifs on the left side. The border is drawn with a simple black line, and the corners are slightly rounded and torn, giving it a parchment-like appearance. The book is open, and the floral motifs are stylized and symmetrical.

Dedication

To the parents of the Class of '49, whose willing sacrifices and daily guidance have made possible our graduation, this volume of "The Ranger" is respectfully dedicated. Their active interest in our work has urged us toward higher goals and by their patient training and example we have been influenced to contribute better lives to the world. May this book convey a measure of our sincere appreciation and gratitude for their foresight and encouragement.

Class History

In 1945-46, we, the Senior Class of this year made our debut into high school life. We were known as "Wet Blankets" to our upperclassmen; but we held our ground and our heads up high. We did our share to help the Junior Red Cross, had our own Student Council representative, and the girls and boys took part in the class tournaments and junior high basketball. Our thrill of the year was when we moved from the "Fire-trap" into our new dream building. (Dreams do come true).

September 1946-47, you could look down the hall, as school opened for our Sophomore year, and see a group of "Fickle Sophomores", our nickname for this year, smiling happily, for we were carefree as the wind. We took part in the amateur contest and the Pep Club. The event of the year was our class picnic held at Babcock State Park.

And suddenly our Junior year loomed before us --- stood smiling into our faces.

September 1947-48 -- Here we were -- "Strutting Upperclassmen". Our thoughts for this year dreamed ahead to our senior year. The "Junior Min-strel" was wonderful and we had a grand time putting it on. We had dances and sold pencils to make money for the Junior-Senior Banquet, the gala event of the year for us. (At least we thought so). Our President, Charles Willard; Vice-President, Beryl Johnson; and Secretary and Treasurer, Catherine Micozzi, and our advisers, Mrs. Fleshman and Mrs. Stroup, worked hard for all we achieved.

September 1948-49. "We're Seniors now! Do you hear?????!!!!!" This is our last year in high school, we all hope. We have a lot to look back on. Four years of fun and friends that will linger with us forever. This year we chose as officers, John Simpson, President; James Dickson, Vice-President; and Nine Kenney, Secretary and Treasurer. A Senior play, "Desperate Ambrose", was presented in November and another play given in March. Our popularity contest was held in January, and our athletes turned in a very creditable season.

We wish to express our sincere gratitude to Miss Green for the patience she has shown us. We owe a lot to our parents and teachers who have taught and guided us during these past years -- our parents and teachers who have prepared us for the future.

Class Prophecy

In this year 1964
I look back once more,
Upon the Senior Class '49
To see if fate is very kind.

Peggy Evans, pretty agent for the F. B. I.,
Makes the hardened criminals sigh -
When she wears her coat of fur,
Sherlock Holmes even follows her.

Charles Willard, a great football star,
Wed Virginia Grose and is going far.
She was the author of a very fine book,
But all she does now is sew and cook.

Thelma Phillips, the gal everyone knows,
Has a job modeling sweaters and hose,
All the people turn and stare,
At this girl with blue eyes and blonde hair.

Nina Kenny, the town's dressmaker,
Married Luther Updike, our undertaker.
Though his business is very dead,
"We are happy," so she said.

A graduate of Notre Dame
Is Clair Trinkley - A man of fame.
He is editor of the Baltimore Sun;
Now he is always' on the run.

Doris Townley had many dreams
They have all come true, it seems.
She finished a good college and married her male -
On her honeymoon for Hawaii she is ready to sail.

Browning Davis is a popular man;
He made speeches throughout our land.
To the White House he was sent,
He is now our President.

Margaret Davis, with hair of red,
Is a talented miss and is very well bred.
Success has certainly come her way
For in Carnegie Hall the piano she plays.

Jack Huffman coaches at Rainelle High,
He is happy; do you know why?
Look at his team bring up the score -
Certainly success has knocked on his door.

Arlene Pack married her sailor,
She sees our country and lives in a trailer.
She lived in North, East, South and West;
Since she loves southern cooking, she likes
the South best.

Okie Sanford now sells medicine;
He is often compared with Thomas Edison.
He now owns a large drug store
And has friends and money galore.

Catherine Micozzi cures patients' ills;
When the sick groan, she gives them pills.
She wears a uniform so clean and white;
She is a good nurse and her future is bright.

Playing in his old home town
Is Donnie Young, a circus clown.
To the people he brings much joy;
He is a wonderful, carefree boy.

Helen Micozzi now teaches school,
But she never has to use a rule.
She is a very successful gal
For children love her, and know she's their pal.

Ray Nutter helps fight crime;
He is the best lawyer of our time.
His life is both exciting and gay.
His great motto is: "Crime does not pay."

The girl, whom we know as Marjorie Reed,
Married her man and did a good deed.
They love one another - what more can be said?
Their life is happy and her husband well-fed.

James Dickson is one that insures good health,
He is a dentist and has great wealth.
Though his patients say "ah" and groan very loud,
He is a friend of whom we are proud.

Ruth Anderson goes to a school of fine arts,
She can draw horses as well as their carts.
A picture she exhibited in an art show
She won first prize and has plenty of dough.

Ruth Riffe, a cute little nurse,
Always has money in her purse.
She helps the sick get well again
And the love of all she wins.

Darrell Sanford sells foods so fine,
He has a restaurant, and serves good wine.
For waitresses he has blondes and redheads,
His business is large and his patrons well fed.

Bea Shearl, a lass with plenty of grace,
Has pretty hair and a pretty face.
A night club in Richmond is where she dances;
Customers look at her with flattering glances.

Raleigh Sanford is a mechanical engineer;
He is famous, so we hear!
He was a builder of trucks and cars.
He now works on a rocket to take him to Mars.

Beryl Johnson, a friend so true,
Now wears the navy blue.
The navy really made a find
When they have a nurse so kind.

Ronald Keavney works for a large airline,
He is a good pilot, and is doing fine.
In our country he has seen every town.
Geel! That boy gets around.

Tommy Dorsey can't beat Ruth Carr;
She plays a clarinet and is going far.
Sweet music she makes and the people say,
"We could stand here and listen the live long day."

President of a telephone company is John Simpson;
He is well liked and his smile is winsome.
He is one that never slumbers
For he memorizes blondes' phone numbers.

Kathryn Egner, girl with a career,
Works each day in every year.
She is a good typist we do know,
For her employer has told us so.

Theda Reed in this city will stay,
She is manager of Murphy's and receives good pay.
We know she has loads of business knowledge,
For she finished a fine commercial college.

Though Elmer Smith is not very old,
He fought Joe Lewis and knocked him out cold.
Muscles he has and muscles he uses;
He is a boxer and he never loses.

Freda Roberts, whom we adore,
Has boy friends by the score.
She can't choose a mate from all these guys.
"I love them all," she sweetly sighs.

Bobby Lepley, man-about-town,
Caught a bus and is Hollywood bound.
We know that he is able
To act better than Clark Gable.

Margaret Adkins and Mary Smith both feel great;
They go to school at Michigan State.
For men they are on the prowl,
Don't you hear that wolf howl?

Delbert Carr went to Africa to hunt big game,
But he thinks all animals look the same.
A pretty girl he did win,
And he said he would never roam again.

Margaret Hedrick has made a gain,
For she works as hostess on a large train.
We know her life is safe and she has no fears,
For she married one of the handsome engineers.

That hot senorita, whom we call Judy Hanna,
Is a rumba queen and wears a bandana.
Carmen Miranda doesn't have a chance
When she sees our Judy dance.

Ama Pack designs dresses so bold
The minute people see them she knows they are sold.
Rita Hayworth loves them as much as you-
These dresses will cause a fire in '72.

Cari Bobbitt now lives in Maine;
He left East Rainelle by a streamline train.
He works on the sea and catches fish by the ton,
He loves his work and thinks it is fun.

Drema Wyatt did quite well;
She married a Duke and is a London Belle.
She says "Cheerio" and "Spot of Tea"-
"I drive a right handed car," she says with glee.

Louise Brigham owns a ranch and plenty of land
In beautiful Texas near the Rio Grande.
Though the sagebush blows and coyotes make noise,
She can always lasso those handsome cowboys.

Who knows what time and fate will do?
Perhaps our ambitions will all come true.
We can succeed if we work and plan
FOR: "We can because we think we can."

The Rainelle Junior High School basketball team under the guidance of Coach Brown, although not having completed their schedule prior to the printing of this book, is enjoying a successful season. To date they have won six games and lost one. We feel that they will continue along their winning ways as there are some excellent players on the team. The remaining schedule is very tough as to competition, but if the boys continue to play a fine brand of basketball they will win the majority of the contests.

Cheer Leaders

"We're with you team, let's go", is the familiar cry of the hard-working cheerleaders, who are struggling hard to keep up with the game and cheer all at the same time.

The cheerleaders, with the cooperation of the school at large, have constantly worked to promote good sportsmanship, to arouse and maintain school spirit, to encourage the teams, and to add color to the occasion.
